

NAIOP SoCal Night at the Fights Attracts More Than 1,000 Attendees for CRE Industry's Greatest Competition and Best Networking

Southern California, CA (October 27, 2025) – On October 9, approximately 1,100 commercial real estate professionals descended upon the OC Fair & Event Center in Costa Mesa to experience the 34th annual NAIOP SoCal Night at the Fights, celebrating a magical evening of elegance and competition.

A highlight for the black-tie gala attendees was two industry bouts featuring four commercial real estate pros making their boxing debut. For 2025, the industry winners included: Lucas Goldberg, Lovett Industrial, who fought Andrew Marshall, Talonvest Capital, and Jonathan Nguyen, Johnson Plumbing, who fought Max Motlagh, Green Street. In preparation for his boxing challenge, Nguyen shared that, "he hoped he could help push someone to step into the ring, just to go for it rather than regret not doing so in their lifetime."

NAIOP SoCal was also honored to welcome NAIOP Chair Alexander Thomson of Edmonton, Alberta-based Prevail who is the first Canadian Chair of NAIOP.

"When planning for this night, we wanted everyone to experience something special. While the boxing competition is a major draw, the entire Night at the Fights experience was designed to be an elevated and magical night to network and celebrate with industry peers. From a masquerade-inspired warm up to a Renaissance-fueled post event party, we captured all the beauty and drama in one unbelievable night," said Night at the Fights Chair Alison Ramsey of JP Morgan.

"This year, we brought together professionals from across Southern California and North America for NAIOP SoCal's signature event. I want to thank our amazing Night at the Fights committee for bringing this year's fairy tale vision to life as well as all the event sponsors, whose support makes this the best commercial real estate event of the year," said NAIOP SoCal CEO Tim Jemal.
